PREFACE

The increase in propria persona (“pro per”) litigation in addition to the traditional delivery of legal services through the representational/advocate model has created the need for a new legal practitioner. More and more legal service providers are evolving into non-traditional, non-representational, non-adversarial attorneys and non-attorneys and as such face issues not envisioned by the existing Rules of Professional Conduct and not addressed in the law of professional ethics.

As the traditional delivery systems for legal services evolve in response to the marketplace demands of the 21st Century, the ethical issues and governing professional responsibility standards that address the manner in which legal services have been delivered for the past two hundred years no longer achieve their intended purpose. Further, the standards that apply may differ as the nature of the provider (governmental vs. private; court vs. traditional legal service provider), the type of services provided (advocacy vs. advice), and the capacity of the individual providing the services (attorney vs. non-attorney, court employee vs. legal service employee) change and evolve.

Do the “canons” upon which the existing Rules of Professional Conduct are based adequately address these issues? Do we need a new articulation of those “canons” in new rules? Do we need new “canons”? How should these “canons” address the traditional role of the legal services advocate and the emerging role the court is undertaking in providing access to justice? Are there core “canons” or “values” that we can identify which can serve as the foundation upon which informed access to legal assistance for the general public, protection of the public in the rendition of legal services, and the role of the legal profession in the administration of justice can be established and preserved in an integrated and effective fashion?

*“Today, access to justice for poor Californians is at best an unfilled promise and at worst a cruel hoax. * * * Recent legal needs studies have quantified the wide gap between the ideal of equal justice for all and the* reality of no justice for many in California and the rest of the nation. Studies by the American Bar Association and bar associations in at least 15 states demonstrate that approximately three out of four poor people who have a legal problem will not receive legal assistance.”

And Justice for All, Fulfilling the Promise of Access to Civil Justice in California, Office of Legal Services, State Bar of California, Access to Justice Working Group (July 1996).

“As California Bar members view the future, the picture they see is far from rosy: a court system struggling to deal with increasing demands from the public in the face of declining financial resources; a public increasingly aware of legal remedies for its problems but without the wherewithal to pay for legal services; and a profession struggling to deal with the challenges posed by growth and social change.”

California Lawyer View the Future: A Report to the Commission on the Future of the Legal Profession, Rand Corporation (1994).

“The delivery of legal services in the United States faces unprecedented challenges. Revolutionary advances in technology and information sharing, the globalization of the capital and financial service markets, and more expansive government regulation of commercial and private activities have reshaped client demands for legal advice and advocacy.”

American Bar Association Commission on MultiDisciplinary Practice Background Paper on MultiDisciplinary Practice: Issues and Developments (January 1999).

*“It is 2020. * * * The single California trial court that came into being in the mid-1990's has evolved almost beyond recognition: it is a true, “ multidimensional” public justice system. No longer merely ‘multidoor’, its approach to dispute resolution represents complementary, mutually supporting relationships among the third branch, other government agencies, and the private sector. * * * The paradigm shift in justice is not merely the product of new structures and processes. It is also the result of better informed disputants, lawyers wearing hats other than the traditional adversary ones, court personnel playing new roles, and new ways of sequencing and managing the resolution process.”*

Justice in the Balance 2020, Report of the Commission on the Future of the California Courts (December 1993).

*“ * * * [A]lthough it is legitimate to consider modifications to the professional rules governing the traditional forms of practice by which consumers of legal services are served by the legal profession as we enter the new millennium, any such changes must be carefully and thoroughly considered to assure that a firm infrastructure exists to support the success of any such changes * * * ”*

The State Bar of California Report with Recommendations to the ABA House of Delegates on MultiDisciplinary Practice (August 1999).

*“ * * * [T]he core values of the legal profession, including competence, independence of professional judgement, protection of confidential client information, loyalty to the client through the avoidance of conflicts of interest, and pro bono publico obligations [must be preserved]. ”*

American Bar Association Commission on MultiDisciplinary Practice, Draft Recommendation to the ABA House of Delegates scheduled for July 2000.

“Some lawyers will be visionaries for change, others will resist it and still others will have it wash over them. The legal profession is a mosaic of its members; it is also a microcosm of society replete with differing subgroups, differing perspectives, and differing interests and objectives.”

SELECTED ISSUES

I. Defining the Scope of Services to Be Delivered

If the service provider is not “representing” the “customer”, does the service provider advise the “customer” of this? How does the service provider define the scope of the services provided?

Is a written disclosure sufficient? Is written consent required?

Must the service provider assure that the “customer” understands the disclosure? How can this be accomplished?

What if the service provider offers both “representational” and “non-representational” services? When does a “customer” become a “ client”?

Disclosure Forms

II. Attorney- Client Privilege/Confidentiality/Privacy

Does the Attorney-Client privilege apply?

If not, is the “customer” entitled to a “confidential” relationship nevertheless”?

What does the service provider do when the “customer” provides information of a confidential nature that would be privileged if an attorney-client relationship existed?

If private information is relevant and material to the proceeding before the court, does the service provider provide it to the court?

If there is no confidential relationship, are the records and files of the service provider subject to discovery? Can the service provider be compelled to testify regarding their discussions with the “customer”?

Resources: Rule 5-120, Rules of Professional Conduct [Member as Witness]

III. Impartiality v. Advocacy

What is the appropriate role of the court-employed facilitator? Do they advocate or simply educate?

Where does education end and advocacy begin?

Is the ultimate duty to the “customer” or to the court?

If the court errs, is it education, advocacy or disloyalty to the court for a court-employed facilitator to “advise” the “customer” to use an established appeal process to challenge the court?

Is there a difference between “informing” a “customer” of an appeal process and “advising” a “customer” to pursue an appeal?

How does the court-employed facilitator respond to the court itself when the bench officer asks the facilitator what the “real story is,” or seeks a suggestion as to what the outcome should be?

What is the advocacy role of the non-court system self-help provider?

What role, if any, does the court-employed facilitator and self-help provider have in the courtroom during a hearing before the court?

How can a service provider and a delivery system maintain impartiality when the service provider is assisting both sides simultaneously. For example, a service provider assists an alleged victim in a domestic violence case and the next day the alleged batterer seeks help from the same service provider. Are there steps that can be taken to insure that both parties receive the same level of assistance? What if the evidence clearly supports the victim’s case? What if the batterer threatens the victim in your presence?

IV. Education v. Advice

Do court-employed facilitators and self-help providers “advise” or simply “educate”? What is the difference? Does it matter?

How does a service provider respond to a “customer” who asks “help me, tell me what I should do?”

suggesting or advising how form should be used in addressing particular legal needs]

V. Conflicts of Interest

If the service provider is not “representing” the “customer”, is there ever an opportunity for a conflict of interest to arise?

Is there a conflict of interest when the service provider has, in a past attorney-client relationship, represented the “customer” seeking assistance? What if the service provider has previously represented the other side?

Are disclosures and consents required? Advisable?

Do conflict of interest concerns matter to those in need of self-help or court facilitated assistance?

In small counties or small towns where there are very limited free or low cost legal services, should a “customer” be denied service when there is no “unconflicted” service provider available?

VI. Addressing the Appearance of Impropriety

How do service providers located in the court or operating under the auspices of the court, avoid appearing to opposing parties and counsel as having special influence with the court?

How do service providers associated with the court and the judicial system avoid appearing to the public as having special influence or being partisan?

Resources: Canon 2, Code of Judicial Ethics [Avoiding the Appearance of Impropriety]

VII. Duty of Candor

Do service provider attorneys working in the court system, under the supervision of the court, have the same duties, lesser duties, greater duties to the court as attorneys providing self-help or pro per assistance not as part of the court? As traditional advocates?

Do self-help providers have a duty to disclose to the court that they are providing assistance to a pro per litigant?

What is the duty of the service provider when he/she learns that the “customer” is providing false information to the court?

VIII. Ex Parte Communications

What contacts are appropriate between a service provider assisting a “customer” and the opposing party when that party is unrepresented? When that party is represented by counsel?

What contacts are appropriate between the service provider and witnesses the “customer” may have present?

For service providers working in the court system, what communications with the court are appropriate? What if the court directs the court-employed facilitator to obtain specific information and gives specific instructions for the assistance to be given litigants in an ex-parte communication?

What if the court-employed facilitator is asked to report back to the bench officer on an ex-parte basis?

Do different standards apply to court employed service providers as opposed to non-court employed self-help providers and traditional advocates?

IX. Competency

Is the duty of the court employed facilitator to provide correct and current information the same or less than the duty of an representational advocate?

Is the duty of the non-court employed self-help provider greater or lesser than that of the court employed facilitator? Of the representational advocate?

Is there a duty to "advise" the "customer" that they need an "advocate" and should get a representational attorney?

Is there a duty to "advise" the "customer" of the future consequences of the actions they are taking?

Is there a duty to maintain files and records for the benefit of the "customer"? What is the appropriate response to a traditional representational advocate recently employed by a former "customer" when the advocate requests the "file" that is now critical to the representation of the advocate's "client"?

X. Liability/Immunity

What liabilities do court employer service providers have to "customers"?

What liabilities do non-court self help providers have?

Do court employed service providers have the immunities which benefit the court system?

Are non-attorney court-employed service providers “practicing” law?

Are non-court-employed self-help providers (attorneys and non-attorneys) “practicing” law?

DRAFT

Title	Guidelines for the Operation of the Family Law Information Centers (adopt Standard 40)
Summary	This proposal establishes ethical guidelines for the operation of the three family law information centers in accordance with the Rules of Professional Responsibility, as required by Family Code section 15010(f).
Source	Family and Juvenile Law Advisory Committee
Staff	Michael A. Fischer 415-865-7685 Bonnie Hough 415-865-7668.
Discussion	Family Code sections 15000 – 15012 established three pilot family law information centers to be administered by the Judicial Council for the purpose of providing information to unrepresented low-income family law litigants. The family law information centers provide information as to the nature of various types of relief available through the family court, what pleadings are required to be filed to obtain that relief, how to enforce court orders and what requirements exist for proper service of court papers. The centers also provide assistance in preparing orders after court proceedings, and referrals to community resources. The centers also encourage parties to seek legal advice and assistance from an independent attorney. Family Code section 15010(b)(2) requires that the information centers shall be supervised by an active member of the State Bar in good standing. However, Family Code section 15010(g) provides that “The family law information center shall not represent any party. No attorney-client relationship is created between a party and the family law information center as a result of any information or services provided by the family law information center pursuant to subdivision (c).” Family Code Section 15010(f) states that “The Judicial Council shall promulgate guidelines for the operation of the family law information center in accordance with the Rules of Professional Conduct.” These are the proposed guidelines.

Given the statutory limitations on the nature of the services provided and the specific role of the centers as an arm of the superior court, the principles set forth in the California Code of Judicial Conduct are often more applicable to the centers than are the Rules of Professional Conduct.

The committee is particularly interested in comments regarding whether these guidelines should be extended to 1) Family Law Facilitator programs and 2) other court-based, self-help centers that structure their service so as not to form an attorney-client relationship with litigants.

Section 40 of the California Standards of Judicial Administration would be adopted effective January 1, 2002 to read:

1 § 40. Guidelines for the operation of family law information centers

3 (a) Guidelines:

5 (1) (Independence and integrity) An attorney and other staff working in a 6 family law information center must, at all times, uphold the independence and 7 integrity of the center in conjunction with its role within the court and the legal 8 system.

10 (2) (Role as representative of the court) An attorney and other staff working 11 in a center must recognize that they are representatives of the court and, as 12 such, must avoid all acts of impropriety or the appearance of impropriety at all 13 times.

15 (3) (Impartiality and diligence) A center attorney must perform his or her
16 duties impartially and diligently. Impartiality includes not giving information 17 to a party for the purpose of giving one party an advantage over another. In 18 addition, a center attorney must not give information to one party that he or she 19 would not give to the other party. Diligence requires that a center attorney 20 provide the litigants with pertinent information to allow them to bring their 21 matter before the court. This may include appropriate referrals to other
22 resources as well as direct information and assistance at the center. The center
23 attorney must require similar conduct of all center personnel.

24
25 (4) (Respect and patience) A center attorney must be aware of the social and 26 economic differences that exist among litigants and maintain patience and 27 respect for the litigants who seek the services of the center. The center attorney
28 must require similar conduct of all center personnel. However, if a litigant
29 becomes unruly or disruptive, the center attorney may ask the litigant to leave 30 the center.

31
32 (5) (Bias and prejudice) A center attorney must assist the litigants who seek 33 assistance from the center without exhibiting bias or prejudice based on race, 34 sex, religion, national origin, disability, age, sexual orientation, socioeconomic 35 status, or other similar factors, and must require similar conduct of all center
36 personnel.

37
38 (6) (Competent legal information) A center attorney and his or her staff must

1 provide the litigants who seek assistance from the center with substantial
2 procedural and legal information so that the litigants will have increased access
3 to the court. The level of competence expected of the center attorney is to be 4 measured within the limitations of the center format and the statutory and other
5 guidelines and limitations that define the services to be provided by the center.
6 The center is not intended to replace private counsel.

8 (7) (Full notification of limits of service) A center attorney must ensure that 9 conspicuous notice is given, as set forth in Family Code section 15010(g), that 10 no attorney-client relationship exists between the center or its staff and the 11 family law litigant. The notice must include the advice that the absence of an 12 attorney-client relationship means that communications between the party and 13 the family law information center are not privileged and that the family law
14 information center may provide services to the other party. Additionally, the 15 center must use Judicial Council form 1294.5, Family Law Information Center
16 Disclosure, or provide similar notice of the warnings set forth in Family Code
17 section 15010(i).

18
19 (8) (Public comment) A center attorney and his or her staff must at all times
20 comply with Family Code section 15010(h) and must not make any public 21 comment about the litigants or about any pending or impending matter in the 22 court.

24 (9) (Gifts or payments) A center attorney and his or her staff must not accept 25 any gifts, favors, bequests, or loans from the litigants whom they assist, since 26 this may give the appearance of impropriety or partiality, except for nominal
27 gifts such as baked goods as allowed by local rules.

28
29 (10) (Communications with bench officers) A center attorney and his or her 30 staff must avoid all communication with a bench officer in which they offer an 31 opinion as to how the bench officer should rule on a case pending before the 32 bench officer. A center attorney, as an arm of the court, may neutrally provide 33 factual information to the bench officer if the bench officer requests such 34 factual information. Communications about purely procedural matters or the 35 functioning of the court are allowed and encouraged.

36
37 (11) (Communication with represented litigants) A center attorney and his or 38 her staff must not assist or communicate, directly or indirectly, with a litigant

1 who is represented by an attorney. The center attorney and his or her staff must 2 take steps to ensure that no litigants assisted by the center are represented by 3 counsel, unless the center attorney has the consent of the litigant’s attorney or 4 the court has ordered the assistance.

6 Advisory Committee Comments 7

8 Family Code sections 15000–15012 established three pilot family law information centers
9 to be administered by the Judicial Council for the purpose of providing information to 10 unrepresented low-income family law litigants. The family law information centers
11 provide information on types of relief available through the family court, what pleadings
12 must be filed to obtain that relief, how to enforce court orders, and what requirements
13 exist for proper service of court papers. The centers also provide referrals to community 14 resources and assistance in preparing orders after court proceedings and they encourage 15 parties to seek legal advice and assistance from an independent attorney.
16

17 Family Code section 15010(b)(2) requires that the centers be supervised by an active 18 member of the State Bar in good standing. However, section 15010(g) provides that 19 “[t]he family law information center shall not represent any party. No attorney-client 20 relationship is created between a party and the family law information center as a result of 21 any information or services provided to the party by the family law information center
22 pursuant to subdivision (c).”
23

24 In order to help litigants understand the nature of the relationship between them and the 25 family law information center, Family Code section 15010(g) directs that, “[t]he family
26 law information center shall give conspicuous notice that no attorney-client relationship
27 exists between the center, its staff, and the family law litigant. The notice shall include the 28 advice that the absence of an attorney-client relationship means that communications 29 between the party and the family law information center are not privileged, and that the 30 family law information center may provide services to the other party.”
31

32 While the party seeking the assistance of the family law information center does not have 33 the traditional protection of attorney-client privilege, Family Code Section 15010(h) does 34 prohibit “[a] person employed by, or directly supervised by, an employee of the family
35 law information center” from making “any public comment about a pending or impending
36 proceeding in the court as provided by paragraph (9) of subdivision (B) of Canon 3 of the 37 Code of Judicial Ethics. All persons employed by, or directly supervised by, an employee 38 of the family law information center shall be provided a copy of paragraph (9) of

1 subdivision (B) of Canon 3 of the Code of Judicial Ethics, and shall be required to sign an
2 acknowledgment that he or she is aware of its provisions.”

4 These guidelines are not intended to be exclusive. To the extent that they apply, attorneys
5 who work in the centers are also bound by the State Bar Act, the Rules of Professional
6 Conduct, local and state court employee rules, and relevant opinions of the California
7 courts.

9 The authorities that govern attorney conduct in California apply to all California attorneys
10 regardless of the capacity in which they are acting in a particular matter. Libarian v. State
11 Bar 25 Cal. 2d. 314 (1944). “Permission” not to comply with these authorities may not 12 be given by the State Bar. Sheffield v. State Bar 22 Cal. 2d.627 (1943).

14 Thus, California attorneys, regardless of the capacity in which they are performing in a 15 particular matter, must conform their conduct to governing California authorities.
16 However, because the disciplinary authorities are activity specific, not all authorities
17 apply in all instances. For example, a transactional attorney who never appears in court is 18 not likely to be at risk of violating the rules which govern court appearances. The 19 transactional attorney is not immune from those rules, the nature of his or her practice
20 simply minimizes the impact of those rules upon the services he or she performs. Thus,
21 while center attorneys will not be immune from the governing authorities, certain rules
22 and requirements will apply more directly to the nature of the services being provided
23 than will others.

24
25 Just as the Rules of Professional Conduct are activity specific in general professional 26 practice, the same is true for center attorneys. Although the Rules of Professional 27 Conduct and related authorities will apply generally, and will apply directly when the 28 attorney is representing “clients” in an attorney-client relationship, they will not directly 29 be invoked where a center attorney provides assistance to a non-client in a family law
30 information center which does not, by definition, represent “clients”.

31
32 To the extent that Family Code sections 15010(g) and (h) establish by law that there is no
33 attorney-client relationship, or privilege, for services provided by a family law
34 information center, the Rules of Professional Conduct that specifically address the 35 attorney client relationship and the carrying out of that relationship would not be invoked.
36 However, the Rules of Professional Conduct would govern attorneys employed by the 37 centers who also continue to work with actual “clients” in an attorney client relationship.
38

1 Although center attorneys are not exempt from the Rules of Professional Conduct, the 2 employing court may promulgate guidelines for services provided by a center that are 3 more applicable than some of the rules that are set forth in the Rules of Professional
4 Conduct. The principles set forth in the California Code of Judicial Ethics are often more
5 applicable to the centers. Those principles form the basis for these guidelines. The court
6 may enforce the guidelines contained in these standards through its employee disciplinary 7 process for court employees. Areas where the guidelines provide standards that are more 8 applicable to the role of the family law information center as an entity of the court are as 9 follows:

10
11 Rule 2-400 (Prohibited Discriminatory Conduct in Law Practice) – see proposed 12 guideline 5 (Bias and prejudice);

DIVISION 16. FAMILY LAW INFORMATION CENTERS

§15000

(a) The Legislature finds and declares the following:

(1) A growing number of family law litigants are unrepresented in family law proceedings, and the primary reason for the lack of representation in these matters is their inability to afford legal assistance.

(2) The failure to have access to legal resources prevents low-income litigants from fully understanding their rights and remedies in family law proceedings, thereby restricting their access to justice.

(3) There is a compelling state interest in ensuring that all family law litigants better understand court procedures and requirements and all litigants have more meaningful access to family court.

(4) It is the public policy of this state to maximize the opportunity for low-income persons to receive fair and just treatment by the family court and to decrease inequities resulting from an unrepresented party's limited legal skills and knowledge.

(b) It is the intent of the Legislature to create information centers to help all low-income family law litigants better understand their obligations, rights, and remedies and to provide procedural information to enable them to better understand and maneuver through the family court system.

§15010

(a) (1) It is the intent of the Legislature in enacting this section to establish a pilot project to be administered by the Judicial Council for the purpose of providing information to unrepresented low-income family law litigants.

(2) It is the intent of the Legislature, in creating this pilot project, to determine the most effective service delivery model to provide family law information and services to unrepresented litigants.

(3) It is the intent of the Legislature that all family law services available to litigants in the superior court of each county strive to adopt policies to most effectively coordinate their activities to ensure ease of access to unrepresented litigants and to avoid unnecessary duplication of services and administrative oversight by the Judicial Council or other oversight agencies.

(b) (1) The pilot project shall consist of three pilot project courts that shall be selected by the Judicial Council from those courts that apply to participate in the pilot project. No court shall be required to apply for the project.

(2) The pilot project courts shall establish a family law information center located in the superior court, that shall be supervised by an active member of the State Bar in good standing.

(3) In superior courts with a family law facilitator, the pilot project shall coordinate its services with the services of the family law facilitator, and in at least one pilot project court, the family law facilitator shall staff and provide the services of the family law information center.

(4) In selecting the pilot project courts, the Judicial Council shall give priority to courts in counties that the Judicial Council determines are most underserved.

(5) The pilot project courts shall determine the composition and number of additional staff necessary to provide the services mandated by this section.

(c) The family law information center shall provide, to unrepresented low-income litigants, information and services, including, but not limited to, the following:

(1) Information as to the nature of various types of relief available through the family court, including restraining orders, marital dissolution or legal separation, paternity, child or spousal support, disposition of property, and child custody and visitation, and the method to seek that relief.

(2) Information as to the pleadings necessary to be filed for relief and instructions on the proper completion of those pleadings, including information as to the importance of the information called for by the pleadings.

(3) Information concerning the requirements for proper service of court papers.

(4) Assistance in preparing orders after court proceedings consistent with the court's announced orders.

(5) Information concerning methods of enforcing court orders in family law proceedings.

(6) The family law information center shall maintain a directory of community resources, including, but not limited to, low-cost legal assistance, counseling, domestic violence shelters, parenting education, mental health services, and job placement programs.

(7) The family law information center shall encourage parties to seek legal advice and assistance from an independent attorney.

(d) For purposes of this division, "low-income" shall mean individuals whose net monthly income, after deduction of mandatory court ordered payments, is 200 percent or less of the current monthly poverty line annually established by the Secretary of Health and Human Services pursuant to the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981, as amended. Family law litigants, prior to receiving the services of the family law information center, shall be required to sign a declaration attesting to their financial eligibility to receive those services. No other efforts to verify financial eligibility shall be necessary.

(e) The family law information center shall provide interpreter services, to the extent available in the pilot project courts, and allow the use of translators to facilitate the services provided pursuant to subdivision (c).

(f) The Judicial Council shall promulgate guidelines for the operation of the family law information center in accordance with the Rules of Professional Conduct.

(g) The family law information center shall not represent any party. No attorney-client relationship is created between a party and the family law information center as a result of any information or services provided to the party by the family law information center pursuant to subdivision (c). The family law information center shall give conspicuous notice that no attorney-client relationship exists between the center, its staff, and the family law litigant. The notice shall include the advice that the absence of an attorney-client relationship means that communications between the party and the family law information center are not privileged, and that the family law information center may provide services to the other party.

(h) A person employed by, or directly supervised by, an employee of the family law information center shall not make any public comment about a pending or impending proceeding in the court as provided by paragraph (9) of subdivision (B) of Canon 3 of the Code of Judicial Ethics. All persons employed by, or directly supervised by, an employee of the family law information center shall be provided a copy of paragraph (9) of subdivision (B) of Canon 3 of the Code of Judicial Ethics, and shall be required to sign an acknowledgment that he or she is aware of its provisions.

(i) The Judicial Council shall create any necessary forms to advise the parties of the types of services provided, that there is no attorney-client relationship, that the family law information center is not responsible for the outcome of any case, that the family law information center does not represent any party and will not appear in court on the party's behalf, and that the other party may also be receiving information and services from the family law information center.

(j) A pilot project court may contract with a private nonprofit entity to staff and provide the services of the family law information center; however, the family law information center must be located, and the services provided, in the superior court.

(k) The Judicial Council shall conduct an evaluation of the pilot project and shall report to the Legislature, no later than March 1, 2003, on the success of the pilot project. The evaluation shall include outcome measures that address increased access to the courts for low-income litigants and any reduced burden on the courts by having the services of the family law information center available. The evaluation shall include an assessment of the number of people using the services of the family law information center, categorized by gender and by type of information sought, including information regarding marital dissolution, paternity, or domestic violence prevention proceedings, or relating to child custody, visitation, child support, or spousal support. The evaluation shall also assess the frequency with which people seek information from the family law information center to initiate an action or to respond to an action. The pilot project shall be deemed a success if, among other things, the pilot project court assists at least 100 low-income family law litigants in each year of its operation, a majority of the judges surveyed in the pilot project court believe the family law information center helps to expedite family law cases with pro per litigants, and a majority of the persons using the family law information center evaluate the services of the family law information center favorably.

This division shall remain in effect only until January 1, 2004, and as of that date is repealed, unless a later enacted statute deletes or extends that date.

Chapter 1. Professional Integrity in General

Rule 1-100. Rules of Professional Conduct, in General

Purpose and Function. The following rules are intended to regulate professional conduct of members of the State Bar through discipline. They have been adopted by the Board of Governors of the State Bar of California and approved by the Supreme Court of California pursuant to Business and Professions Code sections 6076 and 6077 to protect the public and to promote respect and confidence in the legal profession. These rules together with any standards adopted by the Board of Governors pursuant to these rules shall be binding upon all members of the State Bar. For a willful breach of any of these rules, the Board of Governors has the power to discipline members as provided by law. The prohibition of certain conduct in these rules is not exclusive. Members are also bound by applicable law including the State Bar Act (Bus. & Prof. Code, §6000 et seq.) and opinions of California courts. Although not binding, opinions of ethics committees in California should be consulted by members for guidance on proper professional conduct. Ethics opinions and rules and standards promulgated by other jurisdictions and bar associations may also be considered. These rules are not intended to create new civil causes of action. Nothing in these rules shall be deemed to create, augment, diminish, or eliminate any substantive legal duty of lawyers or the non-disciplinary consequences of violating such a duty.

(1) "Law Firm" means: (a) two or more lawyers whose activities constitute the practice of law, and who share its profits, expenses, and liabilities; or (b) a law corporation which employs more than one lawyer; or (c) a division, department, office, or group within a business entity, which includes more than one lawyer who performs legal services for the business entity; or (d) a publicly funded entity which employs more than one lawyer to perform legal services. (3) "Lawyer" means a member of the State Bar of California or a person who is admitted in good standing of and eligible to practice before the bar of any United States court or the highest court of the District of Columbia or any state, territory, or insular possession of the United States, or is licensed to practice law in, or is admitted in good standing and eligible to practice before the bar of the highest court of, a foreign country or any political subdivision

This rule shall continue to apply to the attorneys employed by the Family Law Information Centers.

All attorneys must be members of the State Bar and, as such, are subject to the State Bar's oversight and discipline. However, the attorneys that are employed in the Family Law Information Centers should be subject to oversight and discipline only in relation to the existing, modified, or specific rules of professional conduct that apply to them in their roles at the Family Law Information Centers.

 D0 All activity of a purchaser or potential purchaser under this rule shall be subject to compliance with rules 3-300 and 3-310 where applicable.
 E0 Confidential information shall not be disclosed to a non-member in connection with a sale under this rule.
 F0 Admission to or retirement from a law partnership or law corporation, retirement plans and similar arrangements, or sale of tangible assets of a law practice shall not be deemed a sale or purchase under this rule.

Rule 2-400. Prohibited Discriminatory Conduct in a Law Practice.

For purposes of this rule: (1) "law practice" includes sole practices, law partnerships, law corporations, corporate and governmental legal departments, and other entities which employ members to practice law; (2) "knowingly permit" means a failure to advocate corrective action where the member knows of a discriminatory policy or practice which results in the unlawful discrimination prohibited in paragraph (B); and (3) "unlawfully" and "unlawful" shall be determined by reference to applicable state or federal statutes or decisions making unlawful discrimination in employment and in offering goods and services to the public. In the management or operation of a law practice, a member shall not unlawfully discriminate or knowingly permit unlawful discrimination on the basis of race, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, religion, age or disability in: (1) hiring, promoting, discharging, or otherwise determining the conditions of employment of any person; or (2) accepting or terminating representation of any client.

(C) No disciplinary investigation or proceeding may be initiated by the State Bar against a member under this rule unless and until a tribunal of competent jurisdiction, other than a disciplinary tribunal, shall have first adjudicated a complaint of alleged discrimination and found that unlawful conduct occurred. Upon such adjudication, the tribunal finding or verdict shall then be admissible evidence of the occurrence or non-occurrence of the alleged discrimination in any disciplinary proceeding initiated under this rule. In order for discipline to be imposed under this rule, however, the finding of unlawfulness must be upheld and final after appeal, the time for filing an appeal must have expired, or the appeal must have been dismissed.

This rule should be modified as set forth below.

A center attorney shall assist the litigants who seek assistance from the Center without exhibiting bias or prejudice based on race, sex, religion, national origin, disability, age, sexual orientation, socioeconomic status, or other similar factors, and shall require similar conduct of all Center personnel.

However, this rule should continue to apply, as written in the Rules of Professional Conduct, to attorneys employed by the Family Law Information Centers only when and if they are practicing law in a context separate and apart from

The Family Law Information Centers are neutral, court based programs, and, as such, the ethical considerations that apply to court personnel and bench officers are better suited for the Centers. These ethical guidelines address the issues of impartiality, independence and bias.

The California Code of Judicial Conduct, Canon 3 states "A Judge should perform the duties of judicial office impartially and diligently" and more specifically Canon 3 B.(5) states "A judge should perform judicial duties without bias or prejudice...."

The concepts set forth in these Canons are more relevant to the role of the Center attorneys than Rule 2-400. The Center attorneys are court employees (Family Code section 15010(b)(2)), they do not represent the litigants they assist (Family Code section

Rule 3-600. Organization as Client

In representing an organization, a member shall conform his or her representation to the concept that the client is the organization itself, acting through its highest authorized officer, employee, body, or constituent overseeing the particular engagement.

If a member acting on behalf of an organization knows that an actual or apparent agent of the organization acts or intends or refuses to act in a manner that is or may be a violation of law reasonably imputable to the organization, or in a manner which is likely to result in substantial injury to the organization, the member shall not violate his or her duty of protecting all confidential information as provided in Business and Professions Code section 6068, subdivision (e). Subject to Business and Professions Code section 6068, subdivision (e), the member may take such actions as appear to the member to be in the best lawful interest of the organization. Such actions may include among others: (1) Urging reconsideration of the matter while explaining its likely consequences to the organization; or (2) Referring the matter to the next higher authority in the organization, including, if warranted by the seriousness of the matter, referral to the highest internal authority that can act on behalf of the organization.

If, despite the member's actions in accordance with paragraph (B), the highest authority that can act on behalf of the organization insists upon action or a refusal to act that is a violation of law and is likely to result in substantial injury to the organization, the member's response is limited to the member's right, and, where appropriate, duty to resign in accordance with rule 3-700.

In dealing with an organization's directors, officers, employees, members, shareholders, or other constituents, a member shall explain the identity of the client for whom the member acts, whenever it is or becomes apparent that the organization's interests are or may become adverse to those of the constituent(s) with whom the member is dealing. The member shall not mislead such a constituent into believing that the constituent may communicate confidential information to the member in a way that will not be used in the organization's interest if that is or becomes adverse to the constituent.

A member representing an organization may also represent any of its directors, officers, employees, members, shareholders, or other constituents, subject to the provisions of rule 3-310. Rule 5-120. Trial Publicity

A member who is participating or has participated in the investigation or litigation of a matter shall not make an extrajudicial statement that a reasonable person would expect to be disseminated by means of public communication if the member knows or reasonably should know that it will have a substantial likelihood of materially prejudicing an adjudicative proceeding in the matter.

Notwithstanding paragraph (A), a member may state: (1) the claim, offense or defense involved and, except when prohibited by law, the identity of the persons involved; (2) the information contained in a public record; (3) that an investigation of the matter is in progress; (4) the scheduling or result of any step in litigation; (5) a request for assistance in obtaining evidence and information necessary thereto; (6) a warning of danger concerning the behavior of a person involved, when there is reason to believe that there exists the likelihood of substantial harm to an individual or the public interest; and (7) in a criminal case, in addition to subparagraphs (1) through (6): (a) the identity, residence, occupation, and family status of the accused; (b) if the accused has not been apprehended, the information necessary to aid in apprehension of that person; (c) the fact, time, and place of arrest; and (d) the identity of investigating and arresting officers or agencies and the length of the investigation.

Notwithstanding paragraph (A), a member may make a statement that a reasonable member would believe is required to protect a client from the substantial undue prejudicial effect of recent publicity not initiated by the member or the member's client. A statement made pursuant to this paragraph shall be limited to such information as is necessary to mitigate the recent adverse publicity.

This rule should be modified as set forth below.

A Family Law Information Center attorney shall, at all times, comply with Family Code section 15010(h), and shall not make any public comment about the litigants and/or a pending or impending matter in the court.

California Family Law Facilitators ETHICAL GUIDELINES

Adopted at a meeting of Facilitators in Palm Springs, February 17, 1999

I. INTRODUCTION

The following ethical guidelines are adopted by the California Family Law Facilitators and are intended to provide assistance to Facilitators and to the Courts in addressing the issues of the role, responsibilities and limitations of Family Law Facilitators pursuant to Family Code section 10000 et seq. They are termed "guidelines" in recognition of the fact that the California Family Law Facilitators have established these standards among themselves to assist in the performance of their duties. At most, the collective Facilitators may be able to provide further interpretation and guidance upon request by an individual facilitator or court.

Implicit in these guidelines is the recognition that the needs of and conditions in the 58 California counties vary widely, and therefore, strict adherence to one set of guidelines is neither possible nor even desirable in every county. These guidelines should, then, be viewed as stating an ideal standard for addressing the subject matter of the specific guidelines. It is recommended that if the court in any particular county finds it necessary to vary from the guideline, that some alternative measures be taken to address the underlying conflict between the guideline and the local guideline in the county where the conflict exists.

II. AVOIDING APPEARANCE OF IMPROPRIETY.

Facilitators shall uphold the integrity and independence of the Court at all times.

Facilitators shall, at all times, show respect for and comply with the laws of this State, and act in a manner that promotes public confidence in the integrity and impartiality of the judicial system.

III. DUTIES

A Facilitator shall faithfully perform his/her duties in a competent manner and in conformance with the law. These duties include, but are not limited to:

1. Providing information to the pro per litigants to assist them in obtaining adequate and meaningful access to the appropriate court.
2. Bringing to the attention of the Court any rule, procedure, practice or policy which tends to restrict access of pro per litigants to their legal remedies, and acting in a manner most likely to assist the Court in removing such barriers.

Facilitators shall require any person under their supervision, paid or volunteer, to comply with these standards and shall directly address any violations as soon as possible after becoming aware of the conduct.

IV. IMPARTIALITY

Facilitators shall carry out these duties in a respectful, patient and courteous manner both as to the litigants and as to other Court personnel. Facilitator shall perform their duties without bias or prejudice, and should not, by word or conduct, manifest bias or prejudice, including, but not limited to bias or prejudice based upon race, sex, religion, national origin, disability, age, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status.

California Family Law Facilitators ETHICAL GUIDELINES

Additional provisions proposed at Palm Springs, 2/17/99

I. Add to section on AVOIDING THE APPEARANCE OF IMPROPRIETY:

The Family Law Facilitator shall not represent a party who has contacted or been referred to the Facilitator for assistance. A Facilitator should take all reasonable measures to avoid the appearance that he/she is representing a party. To this end a Facilitator should not:

1. Give advice or information to a party that he/she is assisting that he/she would not he/she would not freely give if the other party were also present;
2. Maintain a file on an individual litigant in the Facilitator's office, other than the official Court file in the litigant's case;
3. Contact third parties regarding the substance of a party's case in the role of the party's advocate. Contacts with Court staff and other non-attorneys regarding procedural matters, scheduling, and file maintenance, and contacts with the District Attorney's office regarding clarification and facilitation of a party's file are permitted;
4. Conduct research for a party except to the extent that the research identifies the statute or case under which the party is proceeding. Doing extensive research regarding an individual situation and writing points and authorities applying the facts of the party's case to that research goes beyond the scope of the services and duties anticipated by the Family Law Facilitator Act.

II. Add to the enumerated DUTIES:

3. In response to inquiries, may provide referral information about appellate remedies, disqualification of bench officers and complaint procedures, State Bar complaints, complaints about mediators, evaluators, special masters or other referees, and other complaint procedures about Court staff and/or Court procedures.

Facilitators shall endeavor to maintain the privacy of the parties with whom they have contact.

III. Add a new section entitled NOTICE OF SCOPE OF SERVICES

The Facilitators shall provide each litigant with notice that shall include, at a minimum, the following information:

1. The Facilitator does not represent the party;
2. The party understands that communications with the Facilitator are not confidential; and

3. The party understands that the Facilitator may also assist the other party in the action.

Events have somewhat overtaken us on this issue as these disclosures are now required by SB 240.

IV. Add a new section entitled EX PARTE COMMUNICATIONS:

1. A Facilitator should avoid all ex parte communications with any judicial officer regarding a case which is before the judicial officer unless the communication is with regard to purely procedural matters or to the functioning of the Court. A Facilitator may have limited ex parte communication with a judicial officer where the following conditions have been met:
 - a. The Court has referred the parties to the Facilitator for mediation of an issue pending before the Court;
 - b. There has been a noticed motion filed by one of the litigants and served on the other party; and
 - c. After meeting with the parties, the Facilitator delivers the Court file and conveys the stipulation to the judicial officer who referred the parties to the Facilitator.
2. A Facilitator should avoid any ex parte communication with an attorney who represents a litigant before the Court with regard to that litigant's case except for purely procedural matters.

V. Add a new section entitled CONFLICTS OF INTEREST:

If a Facilitator has in the past acted as attorney for a party and that same party or the opposing party approaches the Facilitator seeking services regarding the same case in which the Facilitator had acted as counsel,

1. A Facilitator may proceed to provide services if both parties are informed of the potential conflict, and both sign a written waiver.
2. If, however, the Facilitator feels that he/she is privy to sensitive information from one party which, if known to the other party, could substantially affect the outcome of the case, or if the Facilitator feels that he/she has developed a particularly close relationship with one party which would affect his/her ability to provide neutral, objective information to either of the parties, then the Facilitator should not provide facilitator services to either party.
3. Some possible alternatives for dealing with conflict of interest include:
 - a. Referring the parties to another Facilitator in the same or an adjoining county; or
 - b. Referring the parties to a volunteer attorney who will provide the services which would otherwise have been provided by the Facilitator involved in the conflict.

VI. Add a new section entitled PRACTICE OF LAW:

A Facilitator should not practice law in the same Court where he/she is working as a Facilitator. If there are special circumstances that exist in a county which warrant an exception to this rule, then appropriate measures should be taken to address these circumstances with the goal of minimizing the appearance of a breach of neutrality on the part of the Court.

VII. Add a new section entitled FACILITATOR AS PRO TEM, SPECIAL MASTER, OR OTHER REFEREE:

Whenever a Facilitator is acting on behalf of the Court as a Pro Tempore Judge, Special Master, or other referee, the Facilitator shall comply with all of the applicable California Code of Judicial Conduct.

All of the provisions of the Code of Judicial Conduct shall be complied with except the following sections:

- 4C(2) - appointment to governmental positions.
- 4C(3)(a) - leadership in organizations devoted to law.
- 4C(3)(b) - leadership in civic/charitable organizations.
- 4D(1)(b) - transactions with persons likely to come before the court.
- 4D(2) - participation in business entities and managing investments.
- 4D(3) - managing financial interests to minimize disqualifications.
- 4D(4) - acceptance of gifts, bequests, favors, and loans.
- 4E - Fiduciary activities.
- 4F - service as arbitrator.
- 4G - practice of law.
- 4H - compensation for extrajudicial activities.
- 5A - political activity.

A Facilitator shall not act as a Facilitator for either party after he/she has been the Judge Pro Tem, Special Master, or other referee in the case. However, the Facilitator may continue to meet with the parties jointly.
