Data Issued Today on Race, Ethnicity, And Gender of California Judges

San Francisco—The Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) has released demographic data on the race, ethnicity, and gender of California state judges and justices. The information is available on the California Courts website at <http://www.courts.ca.gov/7485.htm>.

The information is provided in compliance with Government Code section 12011.5(n), which requires the AOC to collect and release aggregate demographic data relative to the ethnicity, race, and gender of California state judges and justices, by specific jurisdiction, on or before March 1 of each year. This is the fifth year that the council has released this information.

The data are displayed in charts reflecting justices and judges on the bench as of December 31, 2010, before Chief Justice Tani Cantil-Sakauye took office as Chief Justice of California. The data show:

- (1) the overall gender, race, and ethnicity of justices and judges in the Supreme Court, Courts of Appeal, and trial courts;
- (2) the gender of justices and judges by jurisdiction—for the Supreme Court, Courts of Appeal by district, and trial courts by county;
- (3) the race and ethnicity of justices and judges by jurisdiction;
- (4) the race and ethnicity of justices and judges by gender and by jurisdiction;
- (5) the specific race and ethnicity reported by those justices and judges who indicated that they are of more than one race or ethnicity; and
- (6) a comparison of the current overall data with the data from the reports of the last four years.

The demographic data show an increase in the number of women appellate court justices and trial court judges in 2010. Women now represent 30.8 percent of the judiciary, compared to 27.1 percent in 2006.

The data also show increases over the past four years in the total number of justices and judges in the following race and ethnicity categories: American Indian or Alaska Native (0.4 percent in 2010 compared to 0.1 percent in 2006); Asian (5.4 percent in 2010 compared to 4.4 percent in 2006); Black or African American (5.6 percent in 2010 compared to 4.4 percent in 2006); Hispanic or Latino (8.2 percent in 2010 compared to 6.3 percent in 2006); and Pacific Islander (0.2 percent in 2010 compared to 0.1 percent in 2006); White (72.3 percent in 2010 compared to 70.1 percent in 2006); and Some Other Race (0.9 percent in 2010 compared to 0.2 percent in 2006).

These changes reflect judicial retirements and other departures from the bench, new judicial appointments, and an increase in the number of trial court judges who have provided race/ethnicity information.

Increasing the diversity of California's judicial officers to reflect the rich diversity of California's populace continues to be a key goal of the Judicial Council of California.

The Judicial Council is the policymaking body of the California courts, the largest court system in the nation. Under the leadership of the Chief Justice and in accordance with the California Constitution, the council is responsible for ensuring the consistent, independent, impartial, and accessible administration of justice. The Administrative Office of the Courts carries out the official actions of the council and promotes leadership and excellence in court administration.
