

REFERENCES

1. "Debtors' Prison for Kids?" – this is a report by the Juvenile Law Center that provides good general info about the problem of using economic sanctions in juvenile court: <http://debtorsprison.jlc.org/documents/JLC-Debtors-Prison.pdf>
2. "Research Note: Justice-System Imposed Financial Penalties Increase the Likelihood of Recidivism in a Sample of Adolescent Offenders," – this is the most up-to-date empirical research on the issue: <http://journals.sagepub.com/doi/pdf/10.1177/1541204016669213>
3. "Fines, Fees, & Forfeitures" – this is a short essay I wrote in a recently published compilation that includes a recommendation regarding limitations on the use of economic sanctions in juvenile court: http://academyforjustice.org/wp-content/uploads/2017/10/11_Criminal_Justice_Reform_Vol_4_Fines-Fees-and-Forfeitures.pdf
4. "The Long Term Costs of Fining Juvenile Offenders," – This is a nice overview from The New Yorker: <https://www.newyorker.com/business/currency/the-long-term-costs-of-fining-juvenile-offenders>