

NOTE: This is the second discussion draft of possible rules on public access to electronic appellate court records. The first draft was reviewed by JATS at its October 14, 2014 meeting. At that meeting, JATS provided the following general direction with respect these possible rules and asked staff to revise the draft accordingly:

- The rules should not reduce the level of electronic access currently being provided to appellate court records;
- If electronic access to particular appellate court records is not currently being provided, the rules should treat those records in the same way as they are treated under the trial court rules on access to electronic records;
- The rules should reflect the general assumption that electronic access to appellate court records will be provided through a centralized mechanism, such as the California courts website, rather than being provided by each individual appellate court.

As with the first discussion draft, this draft uses as its base the trial court rules on public access to electronic trial court records (California Rules of Court, rules 2.500-2.507). In this draft, underlining shows additions to those trial court rules, strikeouts show deletions from trial court rules, and yellow highlighting shows changes from the first discussion draft. Following some sections are notes describing particular issues or proposed modifications to the trial court rules. Also following some sections are questions that JATS may want to consider.

Article 6. Public Access to Electronic Appellate Court Records

Rule 8.80. Statement of purpose

Rule 8.81. Application and scope

Rule 8.82. Definitions

Rule 8.83. Public access

Rule 8.84. Limitations and conditions

Rule 8.85. Contracts with vendors

Rule 8.86. Fees for electronic access

Rule ~~2.500~~ 8.80. Statement of purpose

(a) Intent

The rules in this ~~chapter~~ article are intended to provide the public with reasonable access to ~~trial appellate~~ court records that are maintained in electronic form, while protecting privacy interests.

(b) Benefits of electronic access

Improved technologies provide courts with many alternatives to the historical paper-based record receipt and retention process, including the creation and use of court records maintained in electronic form. Providing public access to ~~trial appellate~~ court records that are maintained in electronic form may save the courts and the public time, money, and effort and encourage courts to be more efficient in their operations. Improved access to ~~trial appellate~~ court records may also foster in the public a more comprehensive understanding of the ~~trial appellate~~ court system.

(c) No creation of rights

The rules in this ~~chapter~~ article are not intended to give the public a right of access to any record that they are not otherwise entitled to access. The rules do not create any right of access to ~~records that are sealed by court order or confidential as a matter of law records~~.

Advisory Committee Comment

The rules in this ~~chapter~~ article acknowledge the benefits that electronic court records provide but attempt to limit the potential for unjustified intrusions into the privacy of individuals involved in litigation that can occur as a result of remote access to electronic court records. The proposed rules take into account the limited resources currently available in the ~~trial appellate~~ courts. It is contemplated that the rules may be modified to provide greater electronic access as the courts' technical capabilities improve and with the knowledge gained from the experience of the courts in providing electronic access under these rules.

NOTE:

Subdivision (c): This subdivision was modified to reflect the definitions of sealed and confidential records in rule 8.45.

Rule ~~2.501~~ 8.81. Application and scope

(a) Application

The rules in this ~~chapter~~ article apply only to ~~trial-court~~ records of the Supreme Court and Court of Appeal.

(b) Access by parties and attorneys

The rules in this ~~chapter~~ article apply only to access to court records by the public. They do not limit access to court records by a party to an action or proceeding, by the attorney of a party, or by other persons or entities that are entitled to access by statute or rule.

Rule ~~2.502~~ 8.82. Definitions

As used in this ~~chapter~~ article, the following definitions apply:

- (1) “Court record” is any document, paper, ~~or~~ exhibit, transcript, or other thing filed ~~by the parties to in~~ an action or proceeding; any order, ~~or~~ judgment, ~~or~~ opinion of the court; and any ~~item listed in Government Code section 68151(a), excluding any reporter’s transcript for which the reporter is entitled to receive a fee for any copy court minutes, index, register of actions or docket~~. The term does not include the personal notes or preliminary memoranda of ~~justices, judges or other judicial branch personnel~~.
- (2) “Electronic record” is a computerized court record, regardless of the manner in which it has been computerized. The term includes both a ~~document record~~ that has been filed electronically and an electronic copy or version of a record that was filed in paper form. The term does not include a court record that is maintained only on microfiche, paper, or any other medium that can be read without the use of an electronic device.
- (3) “The public” means an individual, a group, or an entity, including print or electronic media, or the representative of an individual, a group, or an entity.
- (4) “Electronic access” means computer access to court records available to the public through both public terminals at the courthouse and remotely, unless otherwise specified in the rules in this ~~chapter~~ article.

- (5) Providing electronic access to electronic records “to the extent it is feasible to do so” means that electronic access must be provided to the extent the court determines it has the resources and technical capacity to do so.
- (6) “Bulk distribution” means distribution of all, or a significant subset, of the court’s electronic records.

NOTES:

Subdivision (1): Staff is suggesting several modifications to the definition of “court record”:

- Incorporating language from the definition of “record” in rule 8.45, part of the appellate rules on sealed and confidential records. Rule 8.45, and rule 2.550 in the trial court rules on sealed records, include the following definition: “Record’ means all or part of a document, paper, exhibit, transcript, or other thing filed or lodged with the court.” Staff suggests that the definition of “court record” in proposed rule 8.82, like rule 8.45, include references to transcripts or other things filed with the court. This would clarify that the rules in this article cover transcripts and things such as electronic audio or video recordings that are filed with the court.
- Deleting the reference to items being filed “by the parties to” an action or proceeding. In appellate proceedings, some items, such as clerk’s and reporter’s transcripts and amicus curiae letters or briefs, are not filed by the parties but are part of the public court records (see, for example, rules 8.150, 8.200(c), 8.336(g), 8.409(c), 8.487(d), 8.500(g), 8.520(f) and 8.622(e)).
- Adding a reference to opinions to make it clearer that these are encompassed within court records.
- Replacing the cross reference to Government Code section 68151(a) with a provision that specifically identifies court minutes, indexes, and registers of actions or dockets as court records. Government Code section 68151(a) only applies to trial court records. This section, in turn, references Government Code section 68152(g), which also applies only to trial court records. Because of both the internal cross-reference and the inapplicability of both the referenced code sections to appellate court records, staff’s view is that including the reference to Government Code section 68151(a) in the definition of appellate court records is likely to create confusion. Staff reviewed both the referenced code sections (copies of which are attached). Most of the records listed in these code sections are either items that would be filed in the court, and so would be covered by the first clause of this proposed definition of court records, or are orders or judgments, and so would be covered by the second clause of this definition. The exceptions appear to be minutes, indexes, and registers of actions or dockets (Gov. code sec. 68152(g)(11), (14)-(15), and (16), respectively). To make this proposed rule simpler and clearer, staff suggest replacing the cross reference to Government Code section 68151(a) with a provision explicitly including these specific items in the definition of court record.

- Moving the provision that excludes any reporter's transcript for which the reporter is entitled to receive a fee for any copy from this definition of court records to rule 8.83(c) below, which identifies electronic records that may only be accessed at the courthouse. Staff is suggesting this change for two reasons: (1) to avoid creating an impression that reporter's transcripts cannot be received or retained by the courts in electronic format; and, at the same time (2) to keep the access to any such transcripts that are in electronic form the same as the access now available for such transcripts that are in paper form – at the courthouse only.

Subdivision (5): This definition is moved here from rule 2.503/8.83(d) below.

Subdivision (6): This definition is moved here from rule 2.503/8.83(g) below.

QUESTION

How should “court record” be defined for purposes of this rule?

- Are the modifications to the trial court definition of court records suggested by staff acceptable?
- The definition of “court records” in the trial court rule and this draft rule includes all “documents” filed in a case, but does not currently include any specific references to the types of documents that are typically filed in appellate proceedings, such as petition, briefs, and appellate records or supporting documents. Should references to such appellate documents be added? Note: Joseph Lane suggested not adding such specific references.

Rule ~~2.503~~ 8.83. Public access

(a) General right of access

All electronic records must be made reasonably available to the public in some form, whether in electronic or in paper form, except ~~those that are sealed by court order or made confidential by law~~ records.

NOTE:

This subdivision was modified to reflect the definitions of sealed and confidential records in rule 8.45.

(b) Electronic access required to extent feasible

(1) Electronic access, both remote and at the courthouse, will be provided to the following court records, except sealed or confidential records, to the extent it is feasible to do so:

(A) Dockets or registers of actions, which must include the following information:

- i. Date case commenced;
- ii. Case number;
- iii. Case type;
- iv. Case title;
- v. Party names;
- vi. Party type;
- vii. Date of each activity; and
- viii. Description of each activity.

(B) Calendars, which must include the following information:

- i. Date of court calendar;
- ii. Time of calendared event;

iii. Case number; and

iv. Case title.

(C) Opinions.

(D) The following Supreme Court records:

i. Results from the most recent Supreme Court weekly conference;

ii. Briefs in cases argued in the Supreme Court since 2010;

iii. Supreme Court minutes from the preceding 3 years.

(2) If a court that maintains the following records in civil cases in addition to those listed in (1) in electronic form, must provide electronic access to them these records, except those listed in (c), must be provided both remotely and at the courthouse, to the extent it is feasible to do so:

~~(1) Registers of actions (as defined in Gov. Code, § 69845), calendars, and indexes in all cases; and~~

~~(2) all records in civil cases, except those listed in (c)(1)–(9).~~

NOTES

The trial court rule requires courts, to the extent feasible, to provide electronic access, both remote and at the courthouse, to the following records in all cases if these records are in electronic format:

- Registers of actions (as defined in Gov. Code, § 69845);
- Calendars; and
- Indexes. . .

Rule 2.507 specifies what information must be included in these records and what information must not be included.

Remote electronic access is currently available on the California courts website to some appellate court records beyond those available under the trial court rules, including opinions and certain Supreme Court records (see the list of the appellate records currently available that was distributed with the material for JATS October 14 meeting). Per JATS direction, the draft of subdivision (b) above is intended to reflect the additional appellate court records that are already available. The draft of (b)(1)(C) includes opinions among those records that are made available remotely and (D) includes the results of the most recent Supreme Court conference, briefs in cases argued in the Supreme Court since 2010, and Supreme Court minutes for the last 3 years. Not included in the proposed rule are the issue and case summaries provided by the Supreme Court, as these appeared to be outside of definition of court records.

Based on the discussion at JATS October 14 meeting regarding the current technological limitations on making additional information available, staff added back into the subdivision title and added to the draft of subdivision (b)(1) a reference to providing these records “to the extent feasible.”

The draft of (b)(1) also incorporates from rule 2.507 the specifics of what must be included in the electronically accessible registers of actions and calendars, but it does not identify information that must not be included in these records.

Also based on the discussion at JATS October 14 meeting, staff has modified the draft of subdivision (b)(2) to eliminate the reference to the court providing electronic access to these records. The draft now states that electronic access to these records will be provided, but does not specify who will provide this access.

QUESTIONS

1. Should these e-access rules include a provision, such as (b)(1), addressing electronic access to appellate court records that are now available remotely via the California courts website or should this be left implicit/embedded in what is provided on the website?
Things to consider:
 - a. Is it important that a provision addressing this topic be in the rules to provide the public with assurance that there will be electronic access to these records?
 - b. Is it important that a provision addressing this topic be in the rules to provide parallelism to the trial court rules?

- 2. If this topic is addressed in the rules, are the additional records that (b)(1)(C) and (D) would require be made accessible remotely the correct ones to be added to this rule?
 - a. Are the results from the most recent Supreme Court weekly conference court records that should be included in this provision?
 - b. Are the case or issue summaries currently available on the Supreme Court website court records that should be included in this provision?
 - c. Are there any other appellate court records that, if in electronic format, should be made accessible remotely as well as at the courthouse?
- 3. Should this rule specify, as does rule 2.507 in the trial court rules, what information must NOT be included in records to which bulk access is permitted? If so:
 - a. Should this provision apply just to the calendars and docket or to opinions as well?
 - b. What information should the rule specify should not be included in these records? Rule 2.507 prohibits the inclusion of the following information in the trial court calendars, indexes, and registers of action that are subject to bulk distribution:
 - Social security numbers;
 - Any financial information;
 - Arrest warrant information;
 - Search warrant information;
 - Victim information;
 - Witness information;
 - Ethnicity;
 - Age;
 - Gender;
 - Government-issued identification card numbers (i.e., military);
 - Driver's license number; and
 - Date of birth

4. Should subdivisions (b)(2) specify by whom/how the records will be made available?

(c) Courthouse electronic access only

If a court that maintains the following records in the following proceedings in addition to those listed in (b) in electronic form, must provide electronic access to them these records must be provided at the courthouse, to the extent it is feasible to do so, but may provide remote electronic access only may not be provided to these records governed by (b):

(1) Any reporter's transcript for which the reporter is entitled to receive a fee; and

(2) Records in addition to those listed in (b) in the following proceedings:

- (1A) Records in Proceedings under the Family Code, including proceedings for dissolution, legal separation, and nullity of marriage; child and spousal support proceedings; child custody proceedings; and domestic violence prevention proceedings;
- (2B) Records in Juvenile court proceedings;
- (3C) Records in Guardianship or conservatorship proceedings;
- (4D) Records in Mental health proceedings;
- (5E) Records in Criminal proceedings;
- (6F) Records in Civil harassment proceedings under Code of Civil Procedure section 527.6;
- (7G) Records in Workplace violence prevention proceedings under Code of Civil Procedure section 527.8;
- (8H) Records in Private postsecondary school violence prevention proceedings under Code of Civil Procedure section 527.85;
- (9I) Records in Elder or dependent adult abuse prevention proceedings under Welfare and Institutions Code section 15657.03; and

(10J) Records in a Proceedings to compromise the claims of a minor or a person with a disability.

NOTES

The trial court rule requires courts, to the extent feasible, to provide electronic access only at the courthouse to the records listed in subdivision (c) if these records are in electronic format:

Based on the discussion at JATS October 14 meeting, staff has modified the draft of subdivision (c) to eliminate the reference to the court providing electronic access to these records. The draft now states that electronic access to these records will be provided, but does not specify who will provide this access.

For the reasons discussed above in the notes relating to rule 8.82 subdivision (1), staff has also modified this draft to include any reporter's transcript for which the reporter is entitled to receive a fee among the records which, if in electronic format, may be accessed only at the courthouse.

QUESTIONS

1. Should subdivision (c) specify by whom/how these records will be made available?
2. Are the records listed in this draft of subdivision (c) the appellate records that should only be available at the courthouse?
 - a. Should this list include reporter's transcripts for which the reporter is entitled to receive a fee?
 - b. Are there any additional appellate records that should be included on this list?

(d) — "Feasible" defined

As used in this rule, the requirement that a court provide electronic access to its electronic records "to the extent it is feasible to do so" means that a court is required to provide electronic access to the extent it determines it has the resources and technical capacity to do so.

NOTE

To consolidate all of the definitions in this article, the definition of “feasible” has been moved up into the rule containing other definitions, rule 8.82.

(e) Remote electronic access allowed in extraordinary criminal cases

Notwithstanding (c)(52)(E), the presiding ~~judge~~justice of the court, or a ~~judge~~justice assigned by the presiding ~~judge~~justice, may exercise discretion, subject to (e)(1), to permit remote electronic access by the public to all or a portion of the public court records in an individual criminal case if (1) the number of requests for access to documents in the case is extraordinarily high and (2) responding to those requests would significantly burden the operations of the court. An individualized determination must be made in each case in which such remote electronic access is provided.

- (1) In exercising discretion under (e), the ~~judge~~justice should consider the relevant factors, such as:
 - (A) The privacy interests of parties, victims, witnesses, and court personnel, and the ability of the court to redact sensitive personal information;
 - (B) The benefits to and burdens on the parties in allowing remote electronic access, ~~including possible impacts on jury selection;~~ and
 - (C) The burdens on the court in responding to an extraordinarily high number of requests for access to documents.
- (2) The court should, to the extent feasible, redact the following information from records to which it allows remote access under (e): driver license numbers; dates of birth; social security numbers; Criminal Identification and Information and National Crime Information numbers; addresses and phone numbers of parties, victims, witnesses, and court personnel; medical or psychiatric information; financial information; account numbers; and other personal identifying information. The court may order any party who files a document containing such information to provide the court with both an original unredacted version of the document for filing in the court file and a redacted version of the document for remote electronic access. No juror names or other juror identifying information may be provided by remote electronic access. This subdivision does not apply to any document in the original court file; it applies only to documents that are available by remote electronic access.

- (3) Five days' notice must be provided to the parties and the public before the court makes a determination to provide remote electronic access under this rule. Notice to the public may be accomplished by posting notice on the court's Web site. Any person may file comments with the court for consideration, but no hearing is required.
- (5) The court's order permitting remote electronic access must specify which court records will be available by remote electronic access and what categories of information are to be redacted. The court is not required to make findings of fact. The court's order must be posted on the court's Web site and a copy sent to the Judicial Council.

QUESTIONS

1. Is a provision like (e), which essentially overcomes the limitation in subdivision (c) on making most court records in criminal cases available remotely, needed in the appellate rules?
2. If such a provision is needed, should it apply only to criminal cases, or are there other types of proceedings now listed in subdivision (c) in which there might be sufficient interest that the Supreme Court or Court of Appeal might want to make all public records in these cases available remotely?

(f) Access only on a case-by-case basis

~~With the exception of the records covered by (b)(1), the court may only grant electronic access to an electronic record may be granted only when the record is identified by the number of the case, the caption of the case, or the name of a party, the name of the attorney, or the date of oral argument, and only on a case-by-case basis. ~~This case-by-case limitation does not apply to the court's electronic records of a calendar, register of actions, or index opinions.~~~~

(g) Bulk distribution

~~The court may provide Bulk distribution of only its electronic records may be provided only of the records covered by (b)(1). a calendar, register of~~ actions, and index opinions. “Bulk distribution” means distribution of all, or a significant subset, of the court’s electronic records.

NOTES

Subdivisions (f) and (g) in the trial court rules require that trial courts provide electronic access to records other than their calendars, registers of actions, and indexes only on a case-by-case basis.

Subdivision (f) also limits the criteria that can be used in a search for a specific case. The current electronic access to appellate records provided on the California courts website exceeds that authorized under the trial court rules in several ways (see handout on information available on California courts website):

- Opinions in both Supreme Court and Court of Appeal cases are accessible from the website in bulk;
- Supreme Court minutes, briefs in argued cases, and information about actions taken in the most recent Supreme Court conference are available from the website in bulk; and
- The website permits searches for cases based not only on the criteria permitted in the trial courts (case number, party name, and case caption), but also on attorney name for both Supreme Court and Court of Appeal cases and calendar dates for Court of Appeal cases.

Consistent with the discussion at JATS October 14 meeting, subdivisions (f) and (g) above have been drafted to try to reflect current practice. Since the records to which there is currently bulk access are the same as those to which remote access is currently available, rather than duplicating the list of specific records, staff has used a cross-reference to subdivision (b)(1) to identify the records that may be distributed in bulk. Note also that, in this draft, the definition of “bulk distribution” has been moved up into the rule containing other definitions, rule 8.82.

To reflect current practice, subdivision (f) would also allow searches for individual cases based on the name of the attorney and the date of oral argument. Note that currently searches by calendar are only available for Court of Appeal cases.

Based on the discussion at JATS October 14 meeting, staff has also modified the draft of subdivisions (f) and (g) to eliminate the reference to the court granting access to or providing bulk distribution of these records. The draft now states that access may be granted and bulk distribution of these records may be provided, but does not specify who will grant this access or provide this distribution.

QUESTIONS

1. Are the records listed in subdivision (b)(1) the appropriate appellate records to be accessible in bulk?
2. Since bulk access to all of these records is currently provided on the California courts website, should these rules address the provision of these records in bulk or should this be left implicit/embedded in what is provided on the website? Things to consider:
 - a. Is it important that a provision addressing this topic be in the rules to provide the public with assurance that there will be bulk electronic access to these records?
 - b. Is it important that a provision addressing this topic be in the rules to provide parallelism to the trial court rules?
3. Are the criteria listed in subdivision (f) the right ones for the public to be able use to search for/access appellate cases?
4. Should the rule specify by whom/how access to these records will be granted or bulk distribution of these records provided?

(h) Records that become inaccessible

If an electronic record to which ~~the court has provided~~ electronic access has been provided is made inaccessible to the public by court order or by operation of law, the court is not required to take action with respect to any copy of the record that was made by the public before the record became inaccessible.

NOTE

Based on the discussion at JATS October 14 meeting, staff has modified the draft of subdivision (h) to eliminate the reference to the court providing access to records.

QUESTION

Should the rule specify by whom/how access to these records will be provided?

(i) Off-site access

Courts should encourage availability of electronic access to court records at public off-site locations.

Advisory Committee Comment

The rule allows a level of access by the public to all electronic records that is at least equivalent to the access that is available for paper records and, for some types of records, is much greater. At the same time, it seeks to protect legitimate privacy concerns.

Subdivision (c). This subdivision excludes certain records (those other than the register, calendar, ~~and indexes opinions,~~ and certain Supreme Court records) in specified types of cases (notably criminal, juvenile, and family court matters) from remote electronic access. The committees recognized that while these case records are public records and should remain available at the courthouse, either in paper or electronic form, they often contain sensitive personal information. The court should not publish that information over the Internet. However, the committees also recognized that the use of the Internet may be appropriate in certain criminal cases of extraordinary public interest where information regarding a case will be widely disseminated through the media. In such cases, posting of selected nonconfidential court records, redacted where necessary to protect the privacy of the participants, may provide more timely and accurate information regarding the court proceedings, and may relieve substantial burdens on court staff in responding to individual requests for documents and information. Thus, under subdivision (e), if the presiding ~~judge~~ justice makes individualized determinations in a specific case, certain records in criminal cases may be made available over the Internet.

Subdivisions (f) (g). These subdivisions limit electronic access to records (other than the register, calendars, ~~or indexes opinions,~~ and certain Supreme Court records) to a case-by-case basis and prohibit bulk distribution of those records. These limitations are based on the qualitative difference between obtaining information from a specific case file and obtaining bulk information that may be manipulated to compile personal information culled from any document, paper, or exhibit filed in a lawsuit. This type of aggregate information may be exploited for commercial or other purposes unrelated to the operations of the courts, at the expense of privacy rights of individuals.

Courts must send a copy of the order permitting remote electronic access in extraordinary criminal cases to: Secretariat, Executive Office Programs Division, ~~Administrative Office of the Courts~~ Judicial Council, 455 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, CA 94102-3688 or secretariat@jud.ca.gov.

Rule 2.504. 8.84. Limitations and conditions

(a) Means of access

~~A court that maintains records in electronic form must provide~~ Electronic access to these records required under this article must be provided by means of a network or software that is based on industry standards or is in the public domain.

(b) Official record

Unless electronically certified by the court, a ~~trial~~ court record available by electronic access is not the official record of the court.

(c) Conditions of use by persons accessing records

~~A court may condition~~ Electronic access to its court records may be conditioned on:

- (1) The user's consent to access the records only as instructed by the court; and
- (2) The user's consent to the court's monitoring of access to its records.

The court must give notice of these conditions, in any manner it deems appropriate. ~~The court may deny~~ Access may be denied to a member of the public for failure to comply with either of these conditions of use.

(d) Notices to persons accessing records

The court must give notice of the following information to members of the public accessing its records electronically, in any manner it deems appropriate:

- (1) The identity of the court staff member to be contacted about the requirements for accessing the court's records electronically.
- (2) That copyright and other proprietary rights may apply to information in a case file, absent an express grant of additional rights by the holder of the copyright or other proprietary right. This notice must advise the public that:

- (A) Use of such information in a case file is permissible only to the extent permitted by law or court order; and
 - (B) Any use inconsistent with proprietary rights is prohibited.
 - (3) Whether electronic records are the official records of the court. The notice must describe the procedure and any fee required for obtaining a certified copy of an official record of the court.
 - (4) That any person who willfully destroys or alters any court record maintained in electronic form is subject to the penalties imposed by Government Code section 6201.
- (e) Access policy

The court must post A privacy policy must be posted on the California Courts public-access Web site to inform members of the public accessing its electronic records of the information ~~it collected~~ regarding access transactions and the uses that ~~the court may make~~ be made of the collected information.

NOTE

Based on the discussion at JATS October 14 meeting, staff has modified the draft of this rule in several places to eliminate the reference to the court providing access, setting conditions on access, or denying access to records. In the last sentence of subdivision (c) and the first sentence of subdivision (d), staff has left in references to “the court” providing notice of conditions placed on access in a manner that the court deems appropriate, as determining the means of providing such notice seemed as if it might be a function that individual courts might want to retain.

QUESTIONS

- 1. Should the rule specify by whom/how access to these records will be provided, conditions set, or access denied?
- 2. Should individual courts be responsible for determining the manner of providing notice of conditions places on access to electronic records?

Rule ~~2.505~~ 8.85. Contracts with vendors

(a) Contract must provide access consistent with rules

~~The court's~~ Any contract ~~between the court and~~ with a vendor to provide public access to ~~its~~ electronic ~~court~~ records must be consistent with the rules in this ~~chapter~~ article and must require the vendor to provide public access to court records and to protect the confidentiality of court records as required by law or by court order.

(b) Contract must provide that court owns the records

Any contract ~~between the court and~~ with a vendor to provide public access to ~~the court's~~ electronic ~~court~~ records must provide that the court is the owner of these records and has the exclusive right to control their use.

NOTE

Based on the discussion at JATS October 14 meeting, staff has modified the draft of this rule to eliminate the reference to the court entering into a contract with a vendor to provide access to the court's records.

QUESTIONS

1. Is a rule on this topic needed in the appellate rules?
2. Should the rule specify with whom a vendor would be contracting?

Rule ~~2.506~~ 8.86. Fees for electronic access

(a) Court may impose fees

The court may impose fees for the costs of providing ~~public access to copies of its~~ electronic records, under Government Code section ~~68150(f)~~ 68928. ~~On request, the court must provide the public with a statement of the costs on which these fees are based.~~

(b) Fees of vendor must be reasonable

To the extent that public access to a court's electronic records is provided exclusively through a vendor, the ~~court~~ contract with the vendor must ensure that any fees the vendor imposes for the costs of providing access are reasonable.

NOTES:

Subdivision (a): Government code section 68150(I), which addresses trial court records in electronic format, provides “Reasonable provision shall be made for duplicating the records at cost. Cost shall consist of all costs associated with duplicating the records as determined by the court.” In the draft above, the reference to this section has been replaced with a reference to Government code section 68928, which generally addresses fees for copies of Supreme Court and Court of Appeal records, as follows: “The fee for copies of any record or document in the office of the Clerk of the Supreme Court or the clerk of a court of appeal is the prevailing commercial rate as determined by the clerk. The Supreme Court and each court of appeal may waive the charge for copies of opinions furnished to parties to the litigation and other interested persons.”

Two other changes to the trial court rule are suggested:

- Clarifying that the fees that can be charged under this provision are for making copies of electronic records. This seems consistent with the authority provided under Government code section 68928.
- Eliminating the requirement for providing a statement of costs on which the fee is based. This has not been required with respect to other copying fees charged by the appellate courts.

This draft keeps the references to “the court” imposing this fee, as staff thought that this might be a function that individual courts might want to retain.

Subdivision (b): this provision will not be necessary if it is determined that the rules need not address contracts with vendors.

Note also, based on the discussion at JATS October 14 meeting, staff has modified the draft of this rule to eliminate the reference to the court entering into a contract with a vendor to provide access to the court’s records.

QUESTIONS

1. Should the rule specify with whom a vendor would be contracting?

Others Present: Ms. Heather Anderson; Mr. Patrick O'Donnell, Ms. Tara Lundstrom; and Ms. Julie Bagoye

OPEN SESSION

Call to Order and Roll Call

Justice Mauro called the meeting to order at 4:00 PM, and roll call was taken. He noted there were no public comments received prior to this meeting.

Approval of Minutes

The subcommittee reviewed and approved the minutes of the December 17, 2014, Joint Appellate Technology Subcommittee (JATS) meeting.

JATS Membership Changes

Justice Mauro announced that after the December JATS meeting, Brian Cotta, Assistant Clerk/Administrator for the Fifth District Court of Appeal, asked to withdraw from the subcommittee and his request was approved.

Status of Proposed Amendments to Rule 8.71

Justice Mauro provided an update on the status of the proposed amendments to Rule 8.71 that JATS approved in October 2014. Heather made the changes requested by JATS and the proposal as approved by JATS was subsequently approved by the Court Technology Advisory Committee (CTAC) and by CTAC's Rules and Policy Subcommittee. Tara Lundstrom also presented the proposed companion trial court rules amendments to CTAC's Rules and Policy Subcommittee and CTAC, and those proposed amendments were approved too. The proposal to amend 8.71 will be presented to the Appellate Advisory Committee at its March 2015 meeting.

Item 1

Public Access to Electronic Appellate Court Records

Discussion: Heather Anderson, Supervising Attorney, Judicial Council staff, Legal Services

Justice Mauro summarized the work that JATS had done so far on the second draft of a proposal for new rules regarding public access to electronic appellate court records. JATS had reviewed the second draft proposal up through page 9, with the understanding that Frank McGuire would be given an opportunity to comment on those pages at the next meeting. The prior discussions included the following comments:

On page 3, regarding rule 8.82(2), Joe Lane suggested changing the word “computerized” to “digitized.” Don Willenburg suggested instead that the definition of electronic record should be the opposite of the last sentence in (2), i.e.: “ ‘Electronic record’ is a court record that requires the use of an electronic device to be read.”

On page 4, concern was expressed regarding the definition of “bulk distribution.”

On pages 6 and 7, members suggested deleting the enumerated items under proposed rule 8.83(b)(1)(A) and (B).

On page 7, members agreed to wait for Frank McGuire’s input on rule 8.83(b)(1)(D) regarding Supreme Court records.

On page 9, item 2, members agreed to wait for Frank McGuire’s input.

On page 9, item 3b, members thought the rules did not have to specify items that should not be included. Members believed that would be a solution in search of a problem and the proposed rules were not the appropriate place for such protections.

Ms. Anderson then led the continued discussion regarding the proposal.

Frank discussed proposed rule 8.83(b)(1)(D), and specifically the effective dates referenced in proposed rule 8.83(b)(1)(D)(ii) and (iii). JATS agreed the precise dates would not be included in the rule but they would be added in the commentary section. JATS agreed 8.83(b)(1)(D)(ii) should include language specifying that only party briefs are posted, not amicus briefs, and the posting is limited to briefs that are electronically available.

JATS discussed Joseph Lane’s suggestion on page 3, regarding rule 8.82(2), to change the word “computerized” to “digitized,” along with Don Willenburg’s suggestion to change the definition of electronic record to read: “ ‘Electronic record’ is a court record that requires the use of an electronic device to be read.” JATS voted to adopt Don Willenburg’s suggested language, but if the proposal goes out for public comment it will include a reference to the prior language and a request for comment on the proposed change.

JATS discussed the definition of “bulk distribution” in rule 8.82(6). JATS agreed bulk distribution should be defined as “distribution of multiple electronic records that are not provided on a case-by-case basis.”

In addition, JATS discussed proposed rule 8.83(c) on pages 10 and 11. Members agreed with the list of records in subdivision (c)(2).

Future action:

- Ms. Anderson will work with Frank McGuire to revise the language in Rule 8.83(b)(1)(D) as suggested in the meeting.

- The subcommittee will meet again in February 2015 and continue its work, beginning with page 11 of the second draft, in an effort to prepare the proposed rules for consideration by CTAC and the Appellate Advisory Committee (AAC). If approved by CTAC and AAC, the proposal would be submitted to the Judicial Council Rules & Projects Committee for possible circulation for public comment during the regular spring 2015 annual comment period.
