Proposed Action

The Chief Justice directed the Information Technology Advisory Committee (ITAC) to report on the feasibility and resources necessary to pilot three technology innovations recommended by the Futures Commission: remote appearances for most noncriminal court proceedings; voice-to-text language interpretation services at court filing, service counters, and in self-help centers; and intelligent chat technology to provide self-help services. As a first step, workplans were developed to implement the recommendations. The workplans are due by September 29, 2017, pending approval from ITAC and the Judicial Council Technology Committee (JCTC).

The Committee will consider whether to recommend that the workplans for the Futures Commission Directives be approved by the Judicial Council Technology Committee (JCTC).
