

Sign InLOCAL // BAY AREA & STATE

Coronavirus: Outbreak at Walnut Creek nursing home leaves 12 dead, 130 infected

Anna Bauman

July 20, 2020 | Updated: July 21, 2020 9:47 a.m.

Twelve residents have died and 130 people have been infected with the coronavirus at a Walnut Creek nursing home, state health officials said Monday.

Ninety-two residents and 38 health care workers at Manor Care Health Services-Tice Valley tested positive for the coronavirus as of Sunday, according to data from the California Department of Public Health. There were at least 25 active cases among Sign In residents.

Many of the cases were asymptomatic and more than 50 people — 27 residents and 26 staff — have recovered, said Julie Beckert, assistant vice president of marketing communications for HCR Manor Care. The whole facility has been tested.

The screenshot shows a video player interface. At the top left is the 'Fifth & Mission' logo, which includes a stylized 'C' icon and the text 'Fifth & Mission'. To the right of the logo is a play button icon. Below the logo is a black double-headed street sign with 'Fifth & Mission' written on it. The background of the video frame is green. At the bottom of the video frame, there are several small buttons: 'SHARE' (with a share icon), 'SUBSCRIBE' (with a play icon), 'COOKIE POLICY' (with a lock icon), and 'DESCRIPTION' (with a text icon). To the right of the video frame, there is a vertical grey bar with a scroll-up arrow at the top and a scroll-down arrow at the bottom. Below the video frame, the text 'IN THIS PLAYLIST' is followed by two video thumbnails. The first thumbnail is for 'Vaccine Trials Launch in the Bay Area' and shows a person in a lab coat. The second thumbnail is for 'All Masks Are Not the Same' and shows a person wearing a mask. To the right of these thumbnails, the text '340 EPISODES' is displayed above a play button icon. Below the thumbnails, the video titles and durations are listed: 'Vaccine Trials Launch in the Bay Area' (18 min) and 'All Masks Are Not the Same' (14 min).

Video Title	Duration
Vaccine Trials Launch in the Bay Area	18 min
All Masks Are Not the Same	14 min

Data provided by state health officials paint a picture of how the virus spread gradually through the facility in the past month.

The first resident tested positive June 18. Four days later, 32 residents and at least one staff member were infected. The numbers more than doubled in the next week and continued climbing in the following weeks as the virus continued to spread.

The first resident died June 25. Three weeks later, 12 residents were dead, according to state data.

The 120-bed facility offers short-term care, long-term care and outpatient rehabilitation options, according to its website.

The facility has a record of health violations, state records show. Medicare gave the Sign In facility a four-star, or above average, rating.

During an April 2019 recertification inspection, officials found that the facility failed to meet federal and state requirements for providing a safe and clean environment, regularly evaluating and training nurse aides, storing food and kitchen items properly, and following infection control measures, according to state records.

In one instance, an inspector found soiled clothes, a dirty commode bucket and a toilet plunger with brown stains left in a bathroom. In another recorded incident, a housekeeper failed to remove personal protective equipment before leaving the room of a patient with a highly communicable disease.

Related Stories

BY ANNA BAUMAN

Five dead, 66 infected in coronavirus outbreak at Marin...

BY SARAH RAVANI

Contra Costa DA alleges elder abuse, sexual assault at...

Another housekeeper did not sanitize cleaning equipment before taking it out of an isolation room, according to the inspection report. Nurses did not sanitize a blood pressure cuff or pulse oximeter after using them on patients, the report said.

Deaths in long-term care facilities account for more than a third of California's COVID-19 deaths. The virus spreads in close quarters, most often claiming vulnerable victims who are elderly or have pre-existing conditions.

Sign In

There have been 2,953 COVID-19 deaths at 1,223 skilled nursing facilities in California since the beginning of the pandemic, state data show. More than 16,700 residents and 11,800 health care workers have been infected.

At the Walnut Creek facility, employees must self-quarantine after testing positive, Beckert said. Staff wear personal protective equipment, follow hygiene protocols and are screened for COVID-19 symptoms, she said.

In response to the pandemic, the facility implemented regular patient temperature checks, increased cleaning, educated staff regarding personal protective equipment and created an airborne isolation unit for high risk patients, Beckert said. Manor Care is working with health officials and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, she added.

Contra Costa County health officials referred questions to the state health department. A state health representative said the department would not provide information beyond what is available in its database.

The outbreak in Walnut Creek is among the deadliest to hit East Bay skilled nursing homes. Another Contra Costa County outbreak occurred at San Miguel Villa in Concord, where 20 residents died and 82 people were infected.

In Alameda County, 19 residents died in a coronavirus outbreak at Gateway Care and Rehabilitation Center in Hayward.

Anna Bauman is a San Francisco Chronicle staff writer. Email: anna.bauman@sfchronicle.com Twitter: @abauman2

TOP

Sign In

ABOUT

Our Company	Interest Based Ads
Newspaper Delivery Safety Procedures	Terms of Use
Privacy Notice	Careers
Your California Privacy Rights	Advertising

NEWSROOM

Ethics Policy	Anonymous Sources Policy
Correction Policy	Endorsement Process
Visual Ethics Guidelines	News Tips

CONTACT

Customer Service	Newsroom Contacts
FAQ

CCPA

Do Not Sell My Info
---------------------	--

SERVICES

Subscriber Services	Archives
e-edition	Membership
Reprints & Permissions	Store
Corporate Subscriptions	Subscription Offers
App	sfgate.com